THE CODY UNSER FIRST STEP FOUNDATION TO HOLD MEDICAL DIVE STUDY IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
The First Study of its Kind to Take Place in the Birthplace of Recreational Diving

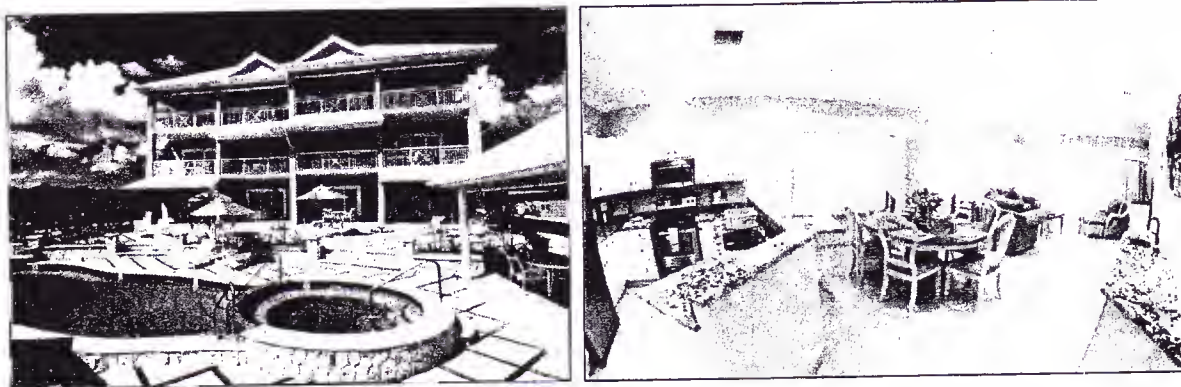

New York, NEW YORK, May XX, 2011 – The Cody Unser First Step Foundation (CUFSF) has chosen the Cayman Islands as the destination to hold its Johns Hopkins-endorsed medical study, the first of its kind, in which they hope to learn about the rehabilitative qualities of diving for people with disabilities. Starting on Friday, May 6th, accomplished spinal cord injury researchers, honorable veterans, Paralympics athletes and Cody Unser will come together in the Cayman Islands, the home of recreational diving, to study the neurological and psychological effects of SCUBA diving on people with and without disabilities.

The Cody Unser First Step Foundation, in partnership with the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and the International Center for Spinal Cord Injury at Kennedy Krieger Institute, has received an IRB (Institutional Review Board) to research a SCUBA-Medical Pilot Study on people with paralysis. The IRB-approved study will conduct human trials on 10 paralyzed veterans to measure the neurological, psychological, and pulmonary effects of SCUBA diving. Cody Unser commented on the milestone, "I am grateful to the doctors who listened to our plea to study the effects of SCUBA, to research the science, and take the time to see it first-hand in the Cayman Islands, some of the best diving waters in the world. We have known for quite some time that SCUBA benefits people with paralysis through movement in a neutrally buoyant environment, not to mention the empowerment and confidence realized by delving into Cayman's clear Caribbean waters."

Expressing his delight about the study, Cayman Islands Premier and Minister of Tourism, Hon. McKeeva Bush stated that the Islands are considered the premier diving destination in the world and he confirmed that as local dive operators are accustomed to working with persons with disabilities, they are well-equipped to facilitate the Cody Unser First Step Foundation with this medical study. "In addition to the pristine conditions and crystal clear waters, Cayman also offers a healthy marine environment for divers," he stated. "In the past year, we have also embarked upon an intensive Dive 365 program, which seeks to develop and preserve 365 dive sites over the next five years, which will ensure we maintain our well earned reputation for world-class diving. We are very pleased to have been selected as the host destination for this important research and look forward to learning more about the beneficial effects of Scuba on persons with and without disabilities."

Located 480 miles south of Miami in the vibrant tranquillity of western Caribbean, this trio of tiny islands is a premier destination for discriminating travellers, honeymooners and families. World renowned for its idyllic beaches and diving spots, and recognized as a sophisticated, diverse financial centre, the Cayman Islands offer spectacular recreational opportunities along with warm, impeccable service. AUSTRALIAN SWIMMER CHOOSES THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOR RECORD INTER-ISLAND SWIM

New York, NEW YORK, June 9, 2011 – On June 9, 2011, Australian long-distance swimmer Penny Palfrey is seeking to set a world record by swimming 68.75 miles non-stop between the Cayman Islands. In attempting the solo swim between the Cayman Islands, Penny will do a first – no one has swum this far before in open water. And she will do it without wetsuit or shark cage.

Before her record-challenging swim, Penny will also swim the channel between Cayman Brac and Little Cayman on June 6, 2011, attempting to set a speed record for the five-mile crossing. Two days later, starting early in the morning on June 9, 2011, Penny will attempt the epic 68-mile distance between Little Cayman and Grand Cayman, which will take an estimated 30 to 45 hours with only momentary pauses every 30 minutes to eat and drink.

An inductee of the International Marathon Swimming Hall of Fame, Penny Palfrey has been a world record holder in swimming feats in the Pacific Ocean, the Atlantic Ocean, in the Mediterranean Sea and around Manhattan Island before attempting to bridge the Cayman Islands.

Premier of the Cayman Islands, Hon. McKeever Bush, welcomed news of the event. "The Cayman Islands is thrilled that an adventurer and swimmer of Penny Palfrey's abilities has chosen the Cayman Islands for this incredible feat. Visitors to our islands, especially swimmers and divers, already know how special are the warm, azure waters surrounding our three islands and it is our wish that she will be favored with the perfect conditions to achieve the world record that she seeks."

"We regard this as a very special occasion for Penny Palfrey and for our islands," noted Acting Director of Tourism, Shomari Scott. "Every year, the Cayman Islands hosts several swim events that are of popular interest to our visitors and residents and an event of this nature is of significant interest to our visitor demographics that place a premium on open water adventures and the various kinds of water sports for which the Cayman Islands is known," he added.

Penny Palfrey's record-breaking swim will lead up to the annual Flowers Sea Swim, a mile-long swim along famed Seven Mile Beach which will take place on June 18, 2011. Boasting over 700 competitors last year, the race has attracted Olympic swimmers including Anthony Nesty, Ryan Lochte, Ian Crocker and others.

TO ATTEND THE HANDS-ON EXPLORER CHALLENGE IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
15 Children have been chosen to explore the Cayman Islands' extensive nature and culture

New York, NEW YORK, June XX, 2011 – National Geographic Kids' panel of experts has selected the next generation of great explorers to experience the field trip of a lifetime — the 2011 National Geographic Hands-On Explorer Challenge. This year's expedition, created in conjunction with the Cayman Islands, will embark July 8 -15, 2011 with National Geographic and local experts as their guides.

The winning explorers will discover the wild wonders of the Cayman Islands, from swimming with the stingrays at Stingray City to trekking through the 750 acres of the Mastic Trail. They will see endangered Blue Iguanas at Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park, reach as deep as 120 feet in the Atlantis submarine and snorkel Cayman's newest dive site, the recently sunk former USS-Kittiwake. The explorers will make a trip to sister island Cayman Brac, exploring natural caves all over the island. The kids will get hands on experience at The Cayman Turtle Farm, kayak The Coastal Mangrove Forest and board the Jolly Roger, Cayman's own pirate ship.

"We are thrilled to welcome the experts from National Geographic and the talented young explorers of the Hands-On Explorer Challenge to the Cayman Islands to share in our rich culture, rare wildlife, and captivating surroundings. With so much to explore both on land and in the water, the Cayman Islands is an ideal destination in which these children can learn about the environment around them," says Hon. McKeeva Bush, Premier of the Cayman Islands.

"The Cayman Islands is delighted to introduce the winners of the National Geographic Hands-On Explorer Challenge to its extensive culture, nature and wildlife," Hon. Cline Glidden, Councilor with Responsibility for Tourism commented. "We treasure these aspects of our culture and hope to introduce these young explorers to all the Cayman Islands has to offer during their time on island."

"We are excited to be partnering with National Geographic, a renowned American brand that is well respected and regarded as a pioneer in dealing with ecological issues, which is close to the Cayman Islands' initiatives," says Acting Director of Tourism, Shomari Scott.

National Geographic Kids Hands-On Explorer Challenge is a national essay and photo competition for kids in its fifth year helping to promote the dedication to hands-on exploration among America's youth. Nearly 12,000 entries have been received since the program's inception, with past expeditions taking winners to the Galápagos Islands, South Africa, Australia and Peru.

This year's lucky explorers include Kamryn Brown from Pleasanton, CA, Diego Gutierrez of Fairfax, VA, Emmie Hine from Wilmette, IL, Taylor Kennedy from Castle Rock, CO, Sha'anani Levy of Sebastopol, CA, Clara Malanaphy from Hudson WI, Kennan Negrete from Windermere, FL, Michael Parker of Mayville, NY, Zane Richer from Candia, NH, Brody Schillo from Billings, MT, Michaela Seaton of Yorktown, VA, Madeline Lloyd from Flower Mound, TX and Harrison Tarabella from Fairhope, AL. These fifteen kids wrote an original personal essay explaining to National Geographic Kids how they actively explore their world, creatively incorporating what inspires and excites them as they explore, while considering how water is essential to life everywhere - from the dew on a leaf, to the sea that surrounds the Cayman Islands.

AIR ARRIVALS CONTINUE TO SOAR

New York, New York (September 9, 2011) Stay-over visitor arrivals are up for the tenth month in a row with July figures showing a significant increase of 7.5% over July 2010. Latest figures from the Department of Tourism shows air passenger arrivals at 31,407, which is the third strongest July over the past 10 years.

Referencing the results at the Tourism Awareness forum on Cayman Brac on Saturday, 3 September, Hon. McKeever Bush, Premier and Minister of Tourism noted that "these results are even more significant when you consider that figures for December 2010 were the highest for any December since the year 2000 and January registered an increase of 5.8 per cent (January over January), which was the highest figure we had seen in any January since 2001.

The Premier explained that "from February through May our tourism statistics have continued to improve and for the month of June, air arrivals were up by 7.6 per cent, over June 2010. This represented the third strongest June arrival figure in 10 years. Furthermore, for the month of July, arrivals from the US are up 7.4 per cent over last July, and there is a dramatic 72.1 per cent increase in arrivals from Canada this July, over what we were seeing in July 2010."

Shomari Scott, Acting Director of Tourism commented: "The growth in arrival figures, particularly during these tough economic times, is extremely gratifying and confirms that our proactive efforts are paying dividends. By working closely with industry partners and introducing new routes with Cayman Airways, the Department of Tourism has launched a number of new initiatives and promotions that are designed to drive visitation and support local businesses and service providers. Clearly, these are delivering the desired results: These figures demonstrate that the Cayman Islands remains a sought-after destination for families, divers, weddings and honeymoons and those simply seeking sun, sea and sand."
